

Warrior
Canine
Connection

KIDS IN THE NEWS

Harlem Kindergarten

"The first thing the kids do each morning is check on the puppy playroom and the nursery," said Hannah. "It's been really fun to take in their thoughts. Everything they say to me is very quirky and funny because of their age. When all the puppies are sleeping on top of each other, the kids always make comments like 'get your foot out of my ear', 'how are you sleeping like that — isn't that uncomfortable?'"

READ MORE

MD Middle School

This year's St. Jude Regional Catholic School yearbook features a very special pupil — one with four legs, a wet nose and a tail. After spending several months attending classes at the school, students decided that Andrew, a service dog in training with Warrior Canine Connection (WCC), should be included in their 2019-2020 yearbook.

READ MORE

Mrs. Patricia O'Connell helped train Warrior Canine Connection service puppy, Andrew.

Inspired Students

"Is this leaked footage from heaven?" That's what Jon, one of Kayla Iannuccilli's eight graders, asked her after seeing the Warrior Canine Connection puppy cam on Explore.org for the first time. Kayla is one of those teachers who makes an impression on her students — tough but fair, yet also creative and fun.

READ MORE

Baking Cupcakes

Strawberry shortcake. Red velvet. Pumpkin spice. Those are just three of the six flavors of cupcakes that Addy Albright, 9, recently baked, decorated and SOLD OUT of at a recent fundraiser she hosted for Warrior Canine Connection. Addy, like her fellow fourth-graders at Sinking Springs Elementary School in York, Pennsylvania, had been doing virtual schooling from home.

READ MORE

